Isaiah 35:1 The wilderness and the solitary place shall be glad for them; and the desert shall rejoice and blossom as the rose.
Hello dear family and friends.

Our Pastor, Mikie Leger did a sermon on some of the verses, including this one. It is so beautiful and unusual to think of a rose blooming in the desert. Bro. Mikie can really get a person's attention. You can tell he must read and study a lot.

We are so proud of Mikie and Amanda's two oldest children. Maddie made a 4.0 and she will be a senior this coming year. Maddie plans to attend U.K. after she graduates from Garrard. She and Julieanne may get together at school over there. Julieann is Dannie and Carole Stiles daughter and is a cousin to Maddie. Maddie's brother, Mikie Jr. made a 3.0.

I sure do hope a lot of you will come and be with us during revival at Harmon's Lick Free Pentecostal Church, beginning Sunday night June 9 and Homecoming Service on June 14, with dinner in the big place behind the church. You are most welcome.

It is such a beautiful, warm and breezy afternoon. There is a symphony of sounds outside and the loudest and most noticeable is our new guests, the Locusts. They have stirred up just about as much excitement and fun as the big snows back in the winter. Lots of people went out and made snow angels. Now people are challenging others to eat the big, bug-eyed strangers. We haven't had any birds to amount to anything. Then my daughter or maybe my sister, told me that cicadas, another name for locusts, are very high in some nutrients. Birds, snakes and other rodents love them. When they are gone in a few days, they will leave behind a lot more good than bad. I knew that my late cousin, Daryl is 68 by counting up the arrival of cicadas. They hatched out the year Daryl was born and every seventeen years since. My cousin, Waylon told me he made $45.00 by eating a cicada. His cousins, Cody Ledford and Mikie Leger gave him the money, on a dare. Then my daughter, Angela, ate one for free, just because her grandson, River, told her how special she would be if she ate one. Now, if Riv was old enough who do you think would make a better Politician? Kidding.

I want to wish Dusty Pemberton a happy birthday on June 5th. I love you to death.

Dear Mother you have been gone away for 40 years today. June 3. We sure do love you mom. I wish we could all sit down and talk and figure some things out. I wish I had kept an oral history of my mom and dad. Their lives were very diversified.

We would also like to wish Larry Adams a heavenly birthday on June 4th. We sure do miss him.

I am going to say goodbye for now. But before I go I want to thank my two sisters and my daughter and little grandson for coming up to visit after they heard that Kenneth wasn't feeling too well. We had a great visit and Ken seemed to feel better when they left. Kylee went home with her grandma. Carolyn and spent the night.

May God bless us one and all.

Summer Reading From Front

The event, which ran until 2 p.m., featured a festive atmosphere with free hot dogs, cotton candy, and Kona Ice offered while supplies lasted. Attendees of all ages enjoyed outdoor activities including bouncy houses, adding an extra layer of excitement to the celebration.

Organized as part of the library's ongoing efforts to promote literacy and community engagement during the summer months, the Kick-Off marked the beginning of the 2025 Summer Reading Program. Library officials emphasized the importance of maintaining reading habits over the summer, particularly among school-aged children, to support continued academic growth.

In addition to the entertainment, visitors had the opportunity to learn more about the reading program's schedule, sign up for events, and explore the library's resources. The day

Summer Has Officially Started

Summer has officially started, and we are finally receiving the warmth of the sun after so many days of rain. As a lifelong gardener I will never complain about the rain as I know too well what the opposite of that will be. Keep a close eye on all the weeds and invasive grasses that have popped up almost overnight and get them pulled out before they set their roots into the ground. In my cut flower gardens I use a lot of straw in my pathways to keep the weeds down and the ground moist. Over the many years it has richly blessed the earth as it has broken down and composted back into the soil. I shake down about 10" of straw after I have removed any weeds and it does a wonderful job!

If you haven't moved your houseplants outside yet it's not too late, especially on any cloudy, rainy days. Don't forget to start them in partial shade or they will sunburn just as we do. Make sure that you remember to water them on a weekly basis or more if necessary. I have just finished planting and staking my Dahlias so if you spot some on sale go ahead and get them planted. Dahlias can grow from 2'-6' depending on the variety so make sure you have access to sturdy stakes. Some gardeners use heavy duty tomato cages or tomato stakes but here on the farm, I use tobacco sticks and baling twine. Granted it's not attractive but it is free, and it does work. The time to stake them is when you plant them, so you won't accidentally damage the tuber. Also, you still have time to plant Gladiolus bulbs for late flowers. They need some support as well and need to be planted deeply to help support the root growth. In this case I have a 4' tall wire fence that I roll out and cut to fit the bed. I use rebar and zip ties to attach to the fence allowing the gladiolus to grow through this. Remember to leave the foliage on your Spring blooming bulbs such as tulips, daffodils, hyacinths, etc. as that's what feeds them for next years blooms. After looking over your flower beds and borders it's not too late to add a few perennials (they come back every year) or annuals (one season only). I have seen a few garden centers offering discounted prices so now is a good time to purchase a few more. Keep any newly planted plants well-watered and they should take off and give you several months of bloom. Keep an eye out for any signs of insects on your shrubs, trees, fruits, etc. as this is the time that they are devouring foliage and fruit. Take samples of any damage to the extension office to identify what it is and what you can do to prevent it. Don't worry about the invasion of the Cicadas ("the Rip Van Winkles of the insect world"). They are harmless to us unless they fly directly into your face which is only a mild contact. They have left numerous holes in the ground as they ventured out of their 17-year underground nap that will help to aerate the soil and give space for other creatures. They should all be gone by the end of June so in the meantime just enjoy their endless chatter. I personally love to hear the sounds of summer, bugs and all. If you have rhododendrons and laurel, make sure to break off the old flower heads after blooming. Only the heads and not the branches. As you can see there are many jobs to be done in the garden every day, week and month. I spend most of my mornings outside working away, enjoying the sounds of the birds, and watching the garden wake up.

Enjoy these warm, sunny days of summer as we get outside to play or garden in our own yards. There are several garden tours in the surrounding area coming up. Check online or in the paper for listings. It's a great way to see what other gardeners are doing in their yards to inspire us in our own.

Please join the Garrard Gardeners on Thursday, June 12 at 4:00 at the Garrard County Extension office. Our new Agriculture and Natural Resource Agent, Casey Byrd will be giving a program on Bloom and Repeat: The Joy of Perennial Plants. We look forward to seeing you there!
