just being together as a team and not having parents taking over and just having that time," Owens said. "I think just like remembering those friendships in the future too, being able to reach out to one another if we're in town or if we see someone."

Gray wants to take away the friendships and bonds she made in her time at North Oldham. "We're always like the underdog, not always, but I think we should remember that, because that, this year, has carried us a long way, especially against CAL in the beginning of the season, in the Apple

Tournament," Gray said. "They beat us by a lot, and they beat us 1-0 in a game three weeks ago. I think it was just the fire. We were fired up, because we knew what they expected from us, and they expected to beat us, but they didn't beat us as much as they thought they would."

Fischer hopes she can remember the friendships she made playing field hockey.

"It was so unique from years past, and we were just so close, especially in preseason," Fischer said. "We would always push each other to get the amount of time that we wanted and constantly work harder to build us up as a team. I think this year, we worked really hard at that, and I think we achieved that. It was one of our biggest achievements and, like Caroline said, owning being an underdog and not letting the name of the other school dictate how we play. I think that helped us grow a lot this year as well."
