in, Edmonton took four minor penalties in the first period. The dam eventually broke on a power-play goal that made it too tough a deficit to overcome.

"Almost half the period you're killing, so it's not a good way to get into your game," McDavid said. "Never got to our game."

The Oilers' play was almost indistinguishable from how they've looked for much of this run, getting balanced scoring and star performances from McDavid and Draisaitl. Ill-timed defensive breakdowns proved costly, and guys lost their cool — like Jake Walman squirting water at Panthers players on their bench from his place on the visiting side.

"I obviously did that for a reason," Walman said, reluctant to explain why. "It's just gamesmanship, I guess."

By the time brawls ensued in the third period, the game was out of hand. Players downplayed the margin of defeat, quick to try to spin their thoughts forward to what they need to do to tie the final. "We know what we're going to be up against," Skinner said. "It doesn't change how we're going to respond again. We've got two days to come back and I think there's some things that we're going to have to change."

That could mean lineup changes and certainly some major adjustments by Knoblauch and his staff. The Oilers also need to be better prepared to play in Game 4, perhaps channeling the pain from back-to-back losses.

Edmonton Oilers' Connor McDavid (97) falls after a check from Florida Panthers' Aaron Ekblad (5) during the second period in Game 3 of the NHL hockey Stanley Cup finals in Sunrise, Fla.
