Hunters Urged to Know Heart Attack and Stroke Warning Signs

American Heart Association offers important safety reminders ahead of hunting season

LEXINGTON, Ky. — As Kentucky hunters prepare to head into the woods, the American Heart Association is reminding them that being prepared means more than having the right hunting equipment.

Cold weather, strenuous physical activity and time spent in remote areas can increase the risks associated with a medical emergency. Knowing the warning signs of a heart attack or stroke could save a life.

Cold temperatures can cause blood vessels to narrow, raising blood pressure and making the heart work harder. Activities such as walking long distances, climbing hills or dragging a deer can also put additional strain on the heart, especially for those who are not accustomed to strenuous exercise.

"You don't have to have a known heart condition to experience a medical emergency in the field," said Dr. Chase Reynolds, chief of staff and electrophysiologist at Pikeville Medical Center and an American Heart Association volunteer.

Reynolds encourages hunters to understand the warning signs and discuss an emergency plan with others in their hunting party.

Know the Warning Signs of a Heart Attack

Symptoms may include:

•Chest pain, pressure, squeezing or discomfort

•Pain or discomfort in the arms, back, neck, jaw or stomach

•Shortness of breath

•Cold sweats, nausea or lightheadedness

Not all heart attacks begin with sudden, severe pain. Some start slowly with mild discomfort.

Recognize a Stroke: B.E. F.A.S.T.

•B – Balance: Sudden loss of balance or coordination

•E – Eyes: Sudden changes in vision

•F – Face: Drooping or numbness on one side

•A – Arms: Weakness or numbness in one arm

•S – Speech: Slurred speech or difficulty speaking

•T – Time: Call 911 immediately

Even if symptoms disappear, emergency medical attention is necessary.

Prepare Before Heading Into the Woods

The American Heart Association recommends that hunters take several precautions:

•Talk with a healthcare professional before strenuous activity, especially if you have heart disease or other risk factors.

•Gradually increase physical activity before hunting season.

•Avoid dragging or lifting heavy game alone.

•Know your hunting location and whether cell service is available.

•Make an emergency
