

Turkey hunters have one-week firearm season

BY PAT CARDIN
OUTDOORS WRITER

Saturday was the beginning of the first of two firearm seasons for turkey hunter this year.

It is just one week long, opening Saturday and closing Oct. 30. Another firearm season opens Dec. 5 and runs through Dec. 11.

During this firearm season, the bag limit is two turkey total for both seasons. So if you tag both during this first season, you're finished for the year.

Only one turkey may be taken per day, and only one turkey may have a beard of 3 inches or longer.

You cannot hunt over bait for turkey and cannot hunt where bait has been brought in for at least 30 days after the bait has been removed. Hunting is allowed wherever a bonafide agriculture crop has been harvested.

Archery season is in and archers can hunt with their archery equipment during the firearm season if they prefer. Hunter orange is not required during the turkey season.

All turkey harvested must be called in to the Telecheck System no later than midnight the day of the harvest.

If you harvest a turkey that has a band on its leg, go online and type in Reporting Turkey Leg Band and follow the instructions to report and help the Department of Fish and Wildlife learn more about turkeys and improve their knowledge of movement in the state.

Any youth hunting during the season that is 15 years old or younger must be accompanied by an adult who can take immediate control of their firearm.

All turkey hunters must have in possession a Kentucky state hunting license and a fall turkey tag.

Issel tours state promoting his memoir

BY CHIP HUTCHESON
KENTUCKY TODAY

LEXINGTON — Dan Issel, the all-time leading basketball scorer for the University of Kentucky who went on to be an NBA Hall of Famer as a player and coach of the Denver Nuggets, is in Kentucky for the next three weeks for the book release of "Dan Issel: From Kentucky Wildcat to NBA Legend."

In the book's preface, Issel said attending UK was the best decision he ever made.

"Not only did I get to play for the iconic Coach (Adolph) Rupp, who pushed and inspired me, but I also met the prettiest cheerleader in the state — Cheri Hughes — who has been my wife since 1969."

While the book highlights his many successes, it also includes some of the darker times. "We talk about that in this book, and about the grace, forgiveness and resilience that followed."

Isse began the book signing tour Tuesday in Hazard.

Other scheduled events are:

Oct. 26: Reading and book signing, Paul Sawyer Public Library, Frankfort.

Oct. 27: Book singing, Barnes and Noble in Fayette Mall, Lexington.

Oct. 29: Book signing and discussion, Henderson County Public Library.

Nov. 6: Book signing at Your Frame of Mind in Lexington.
