CU's Board of Trustees from 2017 to 2023. He's also served on the board since 2007.

Lee earned his Bachelor of Science in Accounting from Campbellsville College in 1975. Over the years, he has worked as a staff accountant, became managing partner of Wise & Lee CPA, then served as Taylor County Bank president/CEO and currently is partner at Squires and Lee CPA in Campbellsville.

Throughout his career, Lee has received several awards, including the Paul Harris Fellow, Campbellsville Taylor County Business Person of the Year, Campbellsville University's Distinguished Alumnus and the CU Algernon Sydney Sullivan Award.

Lee has been an active member of numerous community and organizations, including the Campbellsville Rotary Club, City of Campbellsville Board of Zoning Adjustments, Campbellsville/Taylor County Industrial Foundation, American Institute of CPAs, Kentucky Society of CPAs, Taylor County Bank Board of Directors and a member of Omirron Delta Kappa.

Lee is married to Sharon Morris Lee, and they have a daughter and son-in-law, Corey and Tanner Shultz, and a grandson, Henry Shultz.

Responding to Hopkins' charge during the GBP Commencement on Dec. 11, Umme Salma, who received a Master of Science in Information Technology Management, said, "We accept this charge with gratitude and determination, fully aware of the responsibility that comes with it."

Salma noted that, while there will be challenges on the journey ahead, they are prepared to face those challenges with resilience.

"The lessons learned here have equipped us with not only technical expertise but also the values and mindset to overcome any obstacle," Salma said. "We are inspired to give back to the communities that have nurtured us and to contribute to the world at large."

Salma offered a final word of thanks to those who support her and her classmates during their academic journey.

"Finally, to everyone who believed in us and invested in our potential, we assure you that we will strive to uphold the high standard of Campbellsville University," Salma said. "We will carry its legacy with pride and seek to make it proud through our action."

Ayesha Saba, who received a Master of Science in Computer Science, also responded to Hopkins' charge during the GBP commencement, saying she and her classmates "accept this charge with profound appreciation and determination."

"Campbellsville University is known for a strong focus on personalized education and fostering a supportive learning environment," Saba said. "It's been a great experience with faculty who truly care about student success and provide valuable hands-on learning opportunities, which have greatly enhanced our skills in computer science."

Saba told her classmates commencement marks the culmination of their academic journey and the beginning of a new chapter "where we are poised to make a meaningful impact on the world."

"As international students, to those of us who have traveled far from their vibrant lands, our experiences have been enriched by a tapestry of diverse cultures and perspectives. The knowledge and skills we have gained here translate to more than academic learning.

"They embody resilience, adaptability, and the courage to step ahead. We commit to using these invaluable lessons to make a positive difference in the communities and beyond."

Saba reminded her classmates their time at CU has prepared them for any challenges that are ahead.

"We are ready to create, innovate, and lead, and we will always carry the lessons and values we have learned here with us," she stated.

Ashley Fox, director of alumni relations, welcomed the graduates at the GBP commencement ceremonies to the Campbellsville University Alumni Association.

"What does it mean to be a Campbellsville University alum?" Fox said. "It means you are now part of a global family, a network of individuals who share your values, your drive for excellence and your commitment to make a difference."

Fox reminded the graduates that, as CU alum, they are ambassadors for the university.

"You carry forward its mission to lead with integrity, to serve others selflessly and to be a force for positive change in the world," Fox said. "Being part of this alumni community is not just about where you've been. It's about where you are going.

"It's about staying connected, giving back and lifting others as you climb."

Of the 1,077 students receiving degrees in December, 15 received associate's degrees, 153 received bachelor's degrees, 908 received master's degrees, and one received a doctorate degree.

Candidates for graduation receive their degrees on the recommendation of the faculty and the approval of the Board of Trustees.
