Miller said, if the resolution passed, officials would share copies with Sen. Steve Meredith, R-Leitchfield, and Rep. Samara Heavrin, R-Leitchfield, as well as the Kentucky League of Cities, the latter of which has encouraged cities to adopt such resolutions.

“(It’s) just a show of support more than anything, that we would like to keep our business in-house, if we can,” Miller said.

After discussion, the city council voted to pass the resolution.

In other business, the city council:

- Approved the city’s audit report as presented by Jeff Carter, of Taylor, Polson and Company, for the fiscal year ending on June 30, 2024.
- Voted to permit officials to begin taking credit card payments at the Leitchfield concession stand with the city covering the card processing fee for one year.

- Was informed by Public Works Director Wesley Shull that state officials planned to conduct a traffic count on Thursday of this week to determine how much traffic turns left at the red light by St. Joseph Catholic Church and whether it warrants the installation of a left-turn light at that location.
- Received clarification from Finance Officer Sabrina Whitaker that mobile food trucks do pay restaurant taxes and are subject to audit.

- Voted to rename the Leitchfield baseball complex after former city councilman Kelly Stevenson, so that it will now be called Kelly Stevenson Baseball Complex.
- Voted to amend the city’s budget to accommodate Public Works’ purchasing 18 dumpsters at the cost of $15,600, which is less than half of what the city normally pays, officials said.
