The couple we worked for were very receptive to the Gospel and committed to attending the local church. A few months later, I called the pastor and they had joined the church and were active in several church activities.

Another experience that lingers in my mind was a day when the pastor's wife and I went to look at a job and invite a family to church. She was talking to the husband /father of the family while I and their son, Lee, talked.

We were standing by a mountainside on the edge of a gravel road. An old rusted-out car body was suspended on the mountainside about fifty feet up. An oak tree about the size of my leg was growing through the windshield indicating it had been there a while.

As Lee and I talked, I noticed down a hill on their property were several chicken houses. Mostly made from barrels, the chickens were individually kept.

I asked Lee, "Are those fighting chickens?" He replied, "Yes sir, they are." Then the question that had to be asked, "Don't you know chicken fighting is against the law?" His Not being sure if it was a compliment or an insinuation, he invited me to go to a chicken fight with him Saturday night. With my insatiable craving for new experiences, I would have gone, but we were leaving Saturday morning.

I've thought about Lee and that family many times. Wondering if they ever were caught in their misgivings for the law, I found myself hoping for the best. I won't go any further with that at this point.

We fully realize animal fighting is a worldwide "sport" but in most places, including the U.S., it is a crime. It is a source of animal cruelty, illegal gambling, and the obvious defiance of the laws of the land. I in no way intend to glamorize, rationalize, or condone the activity.

Prize fighting for humans is big business, but physical damage is done, and at times permanent injuries have happened. This is such a case in which there is a very thin line between legal and illegal.

In Lee's statement "Yes sir, I know," told me he either didn't care or

I can't help but wonder how many Christians, active in churches and in attendance every Sunday morning have the same (or similar) attitude about their Christian life as Lee did about the "chicken fighting."

We encounter people almost every day who have the attitude that "the rules don't apply to me." It may be on a highway, in a public place, or in a church. But the fact is, the rules apply to everyone.

"Those rules and laws of God apply to everyone else, but not to me!" Many of us have rationalized that our sin is okay, because of one reason or another (Proverbs 12: 15). God doesn't accept excuses and what we may see as a legitimate reason, God does not.

1 John 1: 9 "If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness." Not to imply this verse is more important than others, but it makes a powerful statement.
