of playing in the half-court. We're focusing on more skill development. We need to learn how to close games and learn how to win. The biggest thing we need to work on is defending; we will struggle early on and defensively we need to be better. I am liking how we are progressing, and I've learned to be patient. They're coming along really well; they're working really hard. I mean, it's something having 13-14 kids in the gym ready to work in June, and it's the players that work in the summer that will be a part of the team left standing at the end of the year. We're young and talented, and the future is bright."

Coach Savage credits his coaching philosophy to success putting players first: "I will not ever coach attitude and effort. I coach extremely hard to get the best out of the player, but in my 19 years of coaching, the most important thing is the players; the players have to come first. I tell my players every day that I love them and if you're caring and put the kids first, they know you love them and care about them; everything will work out."

The Lady Panthers have some new additions to the team, as Coach Savage pointed out a few: "We have some new players this year, like Aubreigh Cross, she can play for me any day of the week, with how hard she works, and she can defend. She would've played for me at Franklin. Abby Riley, she's a dynamic point guard; she's going to be a college basketball player. She can score at all three levels, but she's still learning how to lead a team vocally. Then there is Rylee Grayson, a hard worker; she comes in early and stayed after practice today."

For returning players, Aliza Wilson, DeMyiah "Baby D" Allen, and Saniyah McCoy were the three Coach Savage spoke on their development for this season. "You can't teach size, and at six-foot-two, with a six-foot-nine wingspan, if all McCoy can do right now is move to the dunker's spot and lay it in, defend and rebound, she's All-District team today. Aliza is another kid who could play at the next level; she's built like a college player, can shoot the three, and finish strong at the rim. As for Baby D, we're giving her more work on the perimeter. She can shoot, making four threes in practice today. Like Lareesha (Cawthorn), she's been a back-to-the-basket post player, but we want to up her skillset and get her to face up too."

With a full summer

ahead and a schedule of games in Portland for next week, the Lady Panthers' new chapter with Coach Savage is off to a promising start.
