

Fallen game wardens honored May 19

Tribute to include warden killed in Carroll County

BY STAFF REPORTS

FRANKFORT – Kentucky game wardens who have died in the line of duty will be honored during an 11 a.m. memorial ceremony May 19 in Frankfort.

Among those honored will be James R. Claxton, who was shot and killed in Carroll County as he and two other wardens served a warrant on a man for using a doubling-net in violation of state game laws.

The ceremony will be held outdoors at the Kentucky Fallen Officers Memorial on Kentucky Fish and Wildlife's main campus in Frankfort.

Eleven wardens have died in the line of duty since the agency was established in 1912: Elijah Roberts, Claxton,

JAMES CLAXTON

John C. Martin, James Brady McClain, Raymond Birdsong, David T. Childs, Denver Tabor, Robert C. Banker, Bernard Dean Ratliff, Douglas W. Bryant, and William "Tex" Bailey.

A memorial stone has been added to the Kentucky Fallen Officers Memorial for this ceremony to pay tribute to Bailey, who died Nov. 1, 2024, in Barren County after being engaged in basic swimming and water survival training.

Scheduled speakers include Commissioner Rich Storm, Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources; Col. Jeremy McQueary, Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Law Enforcement Division; Maj. David Marques, Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Law Enforcement Division; and Warden Alex Kidd, Kentucky Conservation Officers' Association.

The fallen officers memorial, 1 Sportsman's Lane, Frankfort, is located between the large, two-story brick Administration Building and the Salato Wildlife Education Center, about ½ mile north of the campus entrance. The entrance is located off U.S. 60, approximately 1½ miles west of U.S. 127.
