Longtime East Ky. Dem joins Republican Party

Sen. Webb says she didn't leave Democrats, but "the party left me"

Longtime Demlcrat legislator, Sen. Robin Webb of Grayson announced Friday she is joining the Republican Party.

Webb, who has served in the state legislature since 1999, was one of two Democrats left in the statehouse representing parts of Eastern Kentucky., once a Democrat stronghold that has turned Republican area over the last two decades

In a press release from the Republican Party of Kentucky, Webb said that she didn't leave the Democratic Party, but "the party left me." She added that her core values have not changed, just "the letter next to my name" and she will continue to focus on issues in rural Kentucky.

"The Kentucky Democratic Party has increasingly alienated lifelong rural Democrats like myself by failing to support the issues that matter most to rural Kentuckians," Webb said. "First and foremost, I'm a mother, a rancher and a lawyer with deep personal and professional roots in Kentucky's coal country. As the Democratic party continues its lurch to the left and its hyper focus on
