Norfolk State has made only one playoff appearance since moving to FCS in 1997. The last five Spartan head coaches have had losing records, including Dawson Odoms, who was fired in November after going 15-30 in four seasons.

Jackson replaced Lee Hull after the Hornets went 1-11 last season.

Sanders eventually jumped from an HBCU program to a Big 12 team in Colorado. He led Colorado to a 9-4 record last season and earned a spot in the Alamo Bowl.

“Without Deion’s success, our success would never be presented to us,” Jackson said. “When I had an opportunity to be in this role, in this seat, I reached out to him. I never thought I would be a coach. I’m just going to be real. All those years I played, I seen how much time the coaches spent in the building. After practice, meetings.”

Vick actually approached Jackson about joining his coaching staff at Norfolk State. Jackson considered the opportunity but jumped at his own chance to run a program.

“The kids and the youth are something that we really pour into,” Jackson said. “To have all the information and the knowledge we have, it would be selfish for us not to give back to these young men that are trying to get somewhere in life.”

Vick said he always wanted to coach and spent most of the last few years coaching his daughter’s flag football team. Vick — who earned a second chance in Philadelphia after his NFL career with Atlanta was derailed by his conviction in 2007 for his involvement in a dog-fighting ring — had run football camps since he was a rookie with the Falcons.

“Every time I have a camp, I feel bad when I leave, I feel bad when the kid goes on to get other coaching,” Vick said. “It was always in me to be with a group of young men, to develop them, see how they transition over a three-month period, a six-month period, a 12-month period.”

The good friends (each called the other a brother) now get a chance to measure their own coaching careers over those same time frames, and beyond.

Just maybe if the wins come, they’ll get a call to a Power Four program like Sanders.

“Hopefully, I won’t say hopefully,” Vick said, “it will be a success.”
