Graduation rates up for higher ed

FRANKFORT - Kentucky’s public colleges and universities made significant gains in undergraduate enrollment and graduation rates, according to the Kentucky Council on Post-secondary Education’s latest progress report, which details postsecondary performance in the 2023-24 school year.

Enrollment at Kentucky Community and Technical College System (KCTCS) campuses climbed 6.8% from fall 2023 to fall 2024, from 78,771 to 84,122 students. Undergraduate enrollment at public universities was up 3.9% over the same period, from 95,472 to 99,233 students.

Efforts to improve college access for underrepresented populations are paying off. Although financial aid data is not yet available for fall 2024, low-income enrollment grew 7.5% at KCTCS and 7% at public universities from fall 2022 to fall 2023.

“It’s encouraging to see such strong enrollment growth, especially given recent declines in FAFSA completion,” said Aaron Thompson, CPE president. “Making postsecondary education accessible to all Kentuckians, regardless of income or circumstance, is one of my primary objectives.”

The report also shows that more students entering two- or four-year institutions are completing a degree or credential within three or six years. The three-year graduation rate for KCTCS jumped 3 percentage points to 47.2%, while the six-year graduation rate for public universities rose 1.3 points to 61.2%, an all-time high,
