THE WAY WE WERE

1926
No Bail

W.M. Green, confessed killer of Stanley Satterly, 27 y ears old, is being held to Circuit Court without bail. This verdict was reached by Judge Powell Taylor after a resume of the case which he explained he reached by weighing the evidence given by the witnesses who testified.

Green was arrested shortly after the killing which took place at the home of Elmer Satterly which was also where Green made his home. Witnesses testified that no trouble was noticed between the men until a scant minute before the killing. Elmer Satterly, a brother of the dead man, was ill. The trouble arose when it was shown there was a difference of opinion as to whether he should be approached as to coming to the noon meal.

Personal Effects

Mr. and Mrs. E.D. Hansel of Lawrenceburg received the personal effects found on the body of their son, William W. Hansel, who was killed in action in 1918 in the fierce Meuse-Argonne battle in France. They consisted of an Elgin watch, Lawrenceburg High School class ring, a fountain pen which had been given him by his father, and several pieces of French money. The point of the fountain pen had been shot off or had been broken in a manner which resembled very much the destructive effects of a bullet. The watch was battered somewhat but unhurt. The class ring was in perfect condition with every letter readable.
